...Ann Landers

You may injure someone, or to what extent you yourself may be disabled. Some guys may look drunk—but they fight sober.

You were wrong, and the best thing to do is admit it. Get on your knees and promise never again—and good luck.

Dear Ann: My husband bought a set of rings for a girl before I came into his life. This gold-digger left the country unexpectedly, and took the rings with her. (Natch.) There is a balance of $367 due on the rings.

My husband and I file joint returns on our income. We will get a refund of $350 this year. Should I give him my share of the refund so he can get the rings paid off? Some people think I should let him sweat out the payments by himself and that I should buy something nice with my share of the money. What do you think?—Sunny.

What do you mean "some people"? Have you been taking a survey?

My advice is to give your husband both ends of the refund so he can get those pesky rings paid off and out of your lives. Marriage is supposed to be a partnership, Toots. This means splitting the losses as the profits. Don't start mining and thine-ing or you may unlock a Pandora's box which could haunt you for the rest of your days.

Be a good sport and he'll think you're the World's Number One Number Two girl.

Dear Ann: I never thought I'd be writing, too, but then that's what everyone says. The false accusations by wives who think their husbands are making time with their secretaries has worked my blood-pressure up.

If these wives knew what their husbands' secretaries REALLY thought of them they wouldn't worry so much.

I'm qualified to speak on this subject because I've been employed as a secretary for over 10 years by three excellent firms. Never once has a boss of mine made a move that was out of the way. And no woman in any of the offices where I've been employed has had this problem, to my knowledge.

It's my firm belief that if more women would get out into the business world after graduating instead of rushing to get married, they'd learn first-hand what happens in offices. Then perhaps they wouldn't be so quick to buy that cheap, soap-opera line. Believe me, an office is the most unromantic place in the world.—Just Miss Smith.

Dear Miss Smith: Thank you for your point of view. The horse is neither all white, nor all black... It's a dapple grey. Statistics do not support your statement that "an office is the most unromantic place in the world." Marriages may be made in heaven, but a good many of the earthly contacts are made right down here in offices.

To learn the knack of feeling comfortable with the opposite sex, send for ANN LANDER'S booklet, "How To Be Date Bait," enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

(Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of THE HERALD and enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope). Copyright 1958, Field Enterprises, Inc.

HUSBAND GETS SURPRISE OF LIFE!

"Was I amazed!" said Gordon Hearne, of 871 Glenway Drive. "I came home at lunchtime yesterday to help my wife, Evelyn, move to our new home. All I found in the house was a sandwich and a glass of milk. The move was already completed! Since moving rates are based on time, I was mighty happy. The faster the job, the less you pay. Believe me, the BEKINS people lived up to all I'd heard about them. Of course, they should be good—they've been in the moving business 67 years. Guess that's why BEKINS men work so quickly and carefully." For moving or storage, call BEKINS.
